

Dyslexia Foundation of Memphis

A great way to finish the school year is with the Foundation and start 2022 with a boost.

Dear friends,

It is new year with new demands on our time and energy. What shall I do on Saturday mornings? So many decisions...do laundry, pay bills, or help a child begin a successful life. It is very true that if a Dyslexic child does not get help, support, and remediation they often become a problem student with low self-esteem. This is not only in school but also in family and social life. Children need somewhere to be accepted and to feel good about themselves. If they are not accepted in school; if they do not do well in the classroom then they often turn to others to be accepted. Sometimes the ones they turn to are also not accepted and are also looking for attention even if it is unwanted attention. This often leads to them joining gangs, getting into trouble and turning to drugs. As their grades improve so does their self-esteem. The Dyslexia Foundation does both. You can help make this happen. If you come and tutor everyone wins! You learn about our strange language and the children you tutor gain self esteem and do better in school which makes their grades improve. So please give tutoring a try. You may really like it. It is a great experience. I

Thoughts from the Prez

Well, the Fall Semester ended with a bang on December 4, 2021. We had several students receive ribbons, medallions, and trophies. Every semester seems to get better and better. Our host, Lord of Life Lutheran Church, is filled with some of the nicest, and friendless people I have ever worked with. Believe me. I have worked with many churches and schools during all my years of being in the Dyslexia Foundation. When I first joined the foundation, we were at St. Mary's Episcopal School. We then moved to Harding Academy, Woodland Presbyterian, Raleigh Church of Christ school, St. Francis Catholic school, St. Benedict Catholic school, and then at All Saints Episcopal church. Now we are at Lord of Life Lutheran Church. Every time I get a bit down thinking "Oh my will this be the end of the Dyslexia Foundation?" the good Lord opens another door. Faith is a wonderful thing! The parents and children that come on Saturday mornings have Faith that we can help their children. The students have Faith that they can improve if they listen to their tutors. The tutors

Michael Faraday was virtually uneducated, but he had an ace up his sleeve. Thomas West, who writes on dyslexia, points out that Faraday showed a full set of typical symptoms. He had terrible trouble with spelling and punctuation. His memory played tricks on him. He couldn't handle mathematics.

He had one more typical dyslexic trait: a powerful visual sense. He forged a finished image in his mind's eye, then he broke that image down into parts that people could understand. Maxwell tells us that Faraday built a mental picture of lines of force, filling space, shaping themselves into lovely arrays."

You can teach a student a lesson for a day; but if you can teach him to learn by creating curiosity, he will continue the learning process as long as he lives. ~Clay P. Bedford

Thanksgiving is a time of year for reflection on all of the things in our lives for which we are grateful. Thus, in honor of my favorite holiday (stuffing, people, stuffing), I have compiled a list of some of the things I am most thankful for.

- The taxes I pay because it means I am employed.
- The clothes that fit a little too snug because it means I have enough to eat.
- I am thankful for all difficult people in my life, because they have shown me exactly who I do not want to be.
- A lawn that has to be mowed, windows that need fixing because it means I have a home.
- The spot I find at the far end of the parking lot because it means I am capable of walking.
- All the complaining I hear about our government because it means we have freedom of speech.
- The lady behind me in church who sings off key because it means that I can hear.
- The huge piles of laundry and ironing because it means my loved ones are nearby.

The alarm that goes off in the early morning hours because it means I am alive.

My list is probably not the same as yours is. Think about all the things you have to be thankful for and when things aren't going well and you want to have a "pity party"; stop, read your thankful list, and change the party to a "Thankful Party". There are always things you can be thankful for if you think about it.
